CHARLOTTE.

R. P. WARING, Editor.

Tuesday, November 23, 1869.

The Superior Court commenced its Fall Session yesterday, with a full docket. His Honor, Judge Logan, made a clear and elaborate charge to the grand jury, with which we were so much pleased, that we regret the severity with which we criticised him at the last term. We think we did him injustice. He certainly endeavours to do right, and has so much improved that he is now a reliable and safe Judge. It is probable that many important cases will be tried this week and the next. Mr. Solicitor Bynum is at his post, and we are glad to say looking well after his arduous toil. He is an able and skillful orator, and by his legal learning and acumen, would adorn the Supreme Bench, to which we trust he will be elevated in the event that Judge Settle is elected to the Senate.

LAW OF MARRIAGE.—The discovery has just been made in New York that where two persons are capable and willing to enter into a contract embodying a proper consideration, and then actually do enter upon it, the contract is binding. This is a common law principle, and why it should not have been known in the Empire State long before this we can only infer. Judge Barnard was driven to apply the doctrine to the case of marriage by the villainous confidence of a respondent in a divorce suit. He blandly acknowledged the statement to the petitioner, "you are my wife," her consent thereto, the placing of a ring on her finger, future cohabitation, and even offspring. At last a case was found which called for justice. The desertion was confessed with the other crimes, and it was conceded that the show of marriage was for the purpose of seduction. The Judge held that the marriage contract was complete; as complete as though a priest or alderman had been present to solemnize it. This is good old-fashioned law. Marriage is a civil contract. Everybody should know this, or, if they don't, the consequence of their ignorance be upon them. "Ignorantia legis neminem excusat."—Phil. Press.

DIFFERENT WAYS OF MAKING MONEY.—The farmer makes his by the sweat of his brow.—N. E. Farmer.

Pavie, the carpenter makes his by building up, while Eubank, the auctioneer, makes his by knocking down. Newbern, (N. C.) Times.

Some people make money by staying at home.—New Bedford Mercury.

Others by going abroad.—Boston Herald.

We knew a distiller that is at home always has been at home; but made his money running off—(turpentine.) Charleston Republican.

The ring make theirs anyhow.—Tribune.

The tailor makes his by giving people fits.—N. J. Courier.

And so does the doctor.—New Bern Daily Times.

At last New York is to have a market which for size and beauty is not to be surpassed by any in the world. This new institution is to be located at the foot of Thirty-fourth street, North River, and ground will soon be broken. It will be a rectangular structure, eight hundred feet in length and two hundred in width, thus enclosing market space of 160,000 square feet, the largest area of any building on the Continent.

It is stated that an investigation into the affairs of the New York Custom House have so far demonstrated that the Government has been defrauded of $800,000 or $1,000,000 by the fraudulent removal of goods from bonds. Blatchford, formerly in the Drawback Department, but latterly in charge of Public Stores, is said to have received ten per cent. on frauds amounting to $250,000.

A magic concert was recently given at a private party in Paris. The instruments were placed on a platform and there were no performers visible, but the overture of "William Tell" was heard distinctly to issue from the piano, violin, cello and harp, which made up the orchestra. The concert took place in broad daylight. The explanation was that each of the instruments was connected by a bar of wood with an identical instrument in an adjoining room, on which the performers played.

RALEIGH, Nov. 20, 1869.

ED. TIMES.—The General Assembly are in session and regularly organized for work. The principle door-keeper, Edgar Miller, col'd, having resigned, an effort was made to bring about an election to fill the vacancy. The entire day was consumed without effecting anything. The Republican caucus having failed to make a nomination, it was agreed to postpone the election until next week, and thereby, costing the people $1,500 or $2,000 to secure a door-keeper for the House. Page, of Randolph, co., is a candidate for the office and is the best door-keeper in the United States, and being proposed by the Republican party it has brought about quite a fervor in their ranks. They, or some of them, say, that Ed. Page is worth more by himself than all the doorkeepers and the five pages—the former being paid $7 and the latter $3 per day at the last session. The Northern and colored members are against the natives.

The indications at present are, that the session will be a long one, unless the per diem can be brought down. A resolution to that effect is now pending in the House.

A lively time was had in the Senate on yesterday, the 19th, on the question of holding over till 1872—The Senator from Craven, although a member of the Convention which made the Constitution, saying, "there shall be an election on the first Thursday in August, 1870, for members of the General Assembly, and every two years thereafter," introduced the resolution, requesting the opinion of the Supreme Court as to whether the present members were elected for two or four years.

It is rumored a little, privately, that Whitley and Grier, members of the House, at the last session voted for the extravagant Railroad appropriations and for the present high tax bill; all such are respectfully referred to the journals of the House, which show the contrary.

Occasional.

THE CONFEDERATE SOLDIER.—The man who loves not his family can never love his State; the man who loves not his State can never love the whole land. The Confederate soldier is now the truest of the true—the most liberal man, the most national man in the South. He has never ceased to claim his interest in the olden glories won by Yankees and Southerners, shoulder to shoulder. The Union can have no foreign foe which is not his foe, and in time of good need he would follow the starry flag as deep into the ranks of the enemy as he ever bore the "lost cause."

The Confederate soldier could not fail to be true to his State, to the South, to the United States. The rights of every citizen would be sacred with him. The man who never struck a fallen foe on the field of battle could never oppress a citizen in time of peace. He is the true conservator of the times. He will not be found wanting in reflective judgment, or patriotism, or justice to all men. He can much more be entrusted with public responsibilities than many of the blatant demagogues of our day, who, for political capital, are the self-elected representatives of a soured, bilious and mawkish rebellious sentiment, existing really nowhere else save in their own mischievous and scheming brains.

Nashville Daily.

MARRIED IN SPITE OF HIMSELF.—Judge Barnard, of New York, in his decision in the Blissert divorce case, says: "If the practice is as common as the defendant alleges, of men passing off women as their wives and allowing them to bear their names without any marriage contract, it is time they should learn the risks to which they expose themselves in thus trifling with the marriage institution, and that a check should be put upon practices so dangerous to the good order of society. There should be a decree declaring the plaintiff to be the lawful wife of the defendant and their child to be legitimate, and adjudging a limited divorce and alimony, with costs and reasonable expenses of the litigation, and the temporary alimony allowed by the order of Judge Ingraham should be increased."

One more "kerosene horror" is added to the long list—this time the conflagration of a Milwaukee theatre, with several persons burned to death, fifteen or twenty others badly burned, and still others maimed in their madness to escape from the building. We are now approaching the end of the year and the regular period for collecting statistics. We suggest that attention be given to compiling a full list of "kerosene accidents" and "kerosene deaths" for the past twelve months. We believe the roll of slaughter would be a terrible one to contemplate.

N. Y. Times.

The cap-stone of the monument to the Confederate dead, in Richmond, Va., was laid in position on the 8th. Several accidents had occurred in the attempts to accomplish the work, but nobody had been hurt. On Monday, as the huge mass of rock was hanging over the monument, everybody looked forward to another breaking of the derrick. One was disposed to undertake the perilous duty of climbing to the top and placing the stone in position. Except Thomas Stanley, a white penitentiary convict from Lynchburg, who boldly volunteered to do it, and did accomplish the feat. The crowd looked on in silence until the work was done, and then justly cheered the man for his brave deed.

The President, in conversation, stated that his message would not exceed probably two columns of an ordinary newspaper—twenty or thirty pages of cap paper. He will confine himself to facts and recommendations, and will not indulge in elaborate arguments upon any subject. The message will be sent to Congress in manuscript, and will be kept open until the last moment, in order that any new matter arising may be incorporated if necessary.

CHURCH ROBBERY.—Wednesday night last some sacrilegious rogues entered the Lutheran Church on Market street and stole a hymn book and the liturgy belonging to the Church, printed in German, and being a part of the donation of Mr. J. D. Love. Suspicion rests upon a party who will probably be arrested.—W. J. Journal.

On Thursday last there was a "general jail delivery" at this place. There are four prisoners. They had for some time meditated "going out," and had made preparations. By means of a file they had inverted an old knife into a saw, by which they cut a hole through the ceiling and escaped. They were soon discovered by the Deputy Sheriff who recaptured them. They are now more securely taken care of.—North Carolina.

DISCOVERY OF MARBLE IN HAMPSHIRE COUNTY, W. VA.—A specimen of white marble, recently discovered by Dr. J. M. Snyder on his land in Hampshire county, W. Va., has been presented to the editor of the Moorefield Advertiser. The marble is pronounced by competent judges a very superior article. It lies not far from the contemplated location of the Alexandria, London and Hampshire railroad, and is said to exist in large quantities.

The poor people of Ireland are beginning to go to Africa to live, believing that they can do better there than at home, should even the land bill pass. We believe that the French Government takes them out to Africa free of cost. To what portion of the world will the Irish emigrant be a stranger soon? Not one. It is a great pity—not to say shame, that these poor people cannot be enabled to live in comfort upon the soil of their nativity.—Col. Phoenix.

A young gentleman living in Kingston, N. Y., went to see his girl the other night, and when he started for home, the night being dark, his inamorata gave him a red paper lantern with which to light his lonely way. He took the railroad track as being the shortest route to his home, and was walking leisurely along, his mind no doubt filled with agreeable thoughts of the fair one he had just left, when suddenly his reverie was brought to an end by some one in the rear, who gave the Chinese lantern a kick, which sent it flying, "confound you," said the person from behind, "here I've been slowing my train for the last two hours on account of that red light." And looking behind him the young man saw a freight train, and it was the engineer who had disturbed his meditations.

The New York Times is disposed to expect great changes at the result of "free labor" in the South. We of the South "can't see it," if it means free negro labor; but we do hope that other labor, aided by a wiser management of our resources and productions, will accomplish a great deal for our section. In an article opposing the removal of the National Capital to some Western city, the Times says: "We all know what the present condition of the Southern States and their seaports is now; but who is the man so bold as to say what it will be after half a century of free labor? Who will venture to assert positively that with their soil and climate, and other natural advantages, those States will not before the close of another century have drawn the weight of population and of wealth away from the Northwestern States completely."

Robert Donaven, of Cincinnati, lost his poise on the Ohio River Bridge at Louisville, and fell fifty feet to the water, his head striking a derrick as he fell. He was not killed, but manfully battled the swift current until rescued by a skiff, after floating half a mile.

The best rebuke to a swearer, that we have read, is that of a Baltimore landlord, who had a man of the swearingest kind, stopping with him. He stood it some time, and finally invited him up stairs, and showed him a room which he said had fitted up on purpose for swearing in.
